

Energy Diet Challenge:

What's Old is New Again

Created by: Kate

Socks with holes turned into homemade mittens

Created by: Theo

I reused an egg carton to make a mini seed starter. I prepared the carton by cutting off the carton's lid, and flap. Then I filled the carton with soil.

Once there was soil in the carton I planted bulbs in the soil. These bulbs will grow into flowers that will help feed pollinators like bees and butterflies.

Created by: Spencer

This is a magic table with a magic trick to go along with it, made entirely out of recycled materials. To make the table I just used a giant box that I found in my garage. This idea was a given, I just had to do something related to magic when I found that giant box and so I just did what I simply had to do.

Created by: Nikita

This is a shirt that honestly fits pretty well I made it out of a queen size pillow case, a bead, string, and a belt.

Created by: Rishi

Here, i have made a Harry Potter wand
With skewers, plasticine, and leftover paint we are not using, instead of actually BUYING Something New

Created by: Lucas F.

I made a sword belt using scrap paper. I fitted it so that a henna bead sword could fit. It could fit around some people's waists but not mine.

Created by: Lukas R

This is a fan made out of an computer fan a old battery and a platform put together with recycled tape

Created by: Tiana

Eating utensils

Bowl

spoon

plate

Toothpick cup holder

Bowtie

tie

bow

Fashion

Table

Here I have made little items out of foam (reused from online deliveries) and toothpicks (they are old and have been used many times). If you stick a toothpick in the top of the table you can attach anything else (except the toothpick cup holder). You can also use one of the toothpicks being used to create the item. The toothpick cup holder is just two pieces of foam stuck together with toothpicks.